The Trainer

Chip McKibben brings with him 18 years of experience in strategic thinking, leadership training and high-performance team coaching. He combines his experience as an Olympic athlete with his corporate experiences in Australia and the USA to provide support for business managers and leaders functioning within a high-performance environment.

His combination of skills helps to uncover a team's intangible capabilities and turn them into core behaviours. This not only provides a blueprint for success, but also establishes the key indicators for your team's future performance.
